SEASON 1939.

William Treseder, Ltd.

The Nurseries (BY CITY LODGE, COWBRIDGE RD.)

CARDIFF.

TELS: "TRESEDER. FLORIST, CARDIFF."

PHONES:

Headquarters, Cowbridge Road. CARDIFF 597.

Llandaff Nursery - - WHITCHURCH 651.

Town Shop, High Street Arcade, CARDIFF 1597.

Where to See our Dahlias.

The main collection of Dahlias may be seen at our Llandaff North Nursery.

This Nursery is near the River Taff bridge, Llandaff North, three miles from town, and may be reached by bus from Westgate Street, High Street, Cardiff. Llandaff North bus stops at the nursery gate.

From Llandaff North Station (G.W.R.) it is five minutes' walk.

A smaller collection may also be seen at our Cardiff Nursery which is quite close to the town, next door to the City Lodge Hospital on the main Cowbridge Road.

Clients are welcome to visit either establishment from 7 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. on any week day—Saturday to mid-day.

Our Llandaff North Nursery is well worth a visit for all garden lovers; preferably during the summer months.

Here may also be seen the latest varieties of bush and climbing Roses, Fruit trees, Flowering cherries, and other Standard trees; Shrubs in variety, and a choice selection of Delphiniums, Lupins, and other herbaceous Rock and Alpine plants.

See page 20 for List of Herbaceous Plants available for Spring delivery.

TORQUAY GEM.

Orange crimson scarlet ; the flowers vary from double to semi-double ; on rigid stems ; foliage distinct and very dark ; habit, bushy and dwarf ; 2—2' 6" ; Gold Medal and A.M., Wisley, 1934.

CONDITIONS.

Cash with Order is required from unknown correspondents, or bankers references.

Carriage is paid on Orders for plants sent in pots of £2 and over and half carriage on orders over £1 ; boxes and packing free. (This offer applies to orders within 200 miles of Cardiff).

Plants travel better and safer in their pots by passenger train service, but when necessary to send by post (outside of the railway delivery areas) the plants are packed without their pots.

Post charges are 1/- extra per dozen plants.

For any number over 12 add 6d. per dozen or part thereof.

We never substitute varieties unless we have permission to do so ; Clients would greatly help by adding the names of a few extra varieties.

Execution of Orders is taken strictly in rotation, those taken during 1938 take precedence. We cannot guarantee to despatch late orders by return.

The above Conditions do not refer to our " Special Offers " as below.

Special Offer of Named Varieties of Dahlias

OUR SELECTION ONLY.

7/6 Per Dozen, Out of Pots, Post Paid,
FOR CASH WITH ORDER.

We can also make a Special Offer of 12 leading Decorative and 12 Cactus Dahlias. We are able to make this exceptionally cheap offer as we have large stocks of these particular varieties.

Cultural Directions.

Cultural directions in a catalogue must necessarily be brief, and are chiefly intended for the novice.

The best site for Dahlia culture is an open sunny one—free from dense shade and overhanging branches. The soil should be well dug and finely worked, autumn or early spring.

The Dahlia thrives in any well cultivated soil, but with the addition of stable manure in reasonable quantities, there is certainly an improvement in the vigour of the plants and the colour and size of the flowers. By the addition of a little bone meal in the top six inches of the soil, one is amply repaid for the extra labour. The time of planting is important and with the exception of favoured localities like the S.W. of England, there is no advantage in putting out one's plants before the first week of June. The Dahlia normally flowers from about the second week of August, but by obtaining the young plants about the end of April, potting on into 5-inch pots and keeping in a greenhouse or frame for a month or so, they may be induced to bloom about 3 weeks earlier.

The young plants are a great attraction to Slugs and Snails, and special precautions should be taken against these pests for the first three or four weeks of their growth.

Staking is important, especially for the taller growing varieties. The best method is to have a central stout stake to which the main stem can be attached, with 3 or 4 others to come equi distant around the plant, each to be about 1 foot from the central one. The stakes can then be encircled with strong soft twine at two or three different levels, so that most of the branches are within the encircled area and the whole plant is thus fairly secure against any violent winds. With regard to watering, the same remarks apply as to the addition of manure to the soil. It is not absolutely necessary, especially when the surface soil is well and regularly hoed, but one may be well repaid for any additional labour in this respect. The best way to water is to use a can with a fine rose and thoroughly wet all the foliage, an hour or so before sunset being the best time.

With regard to insect pests, such as the Aphis type, any good proprietary Insecticide should be sufficient to keep the plants clean and healthy. A good syringe with a bent nozzle to enable one to wet underneath the foliage, is best for this operation.

Many people are disappointed with Cut Dahlias because they flag so soon, but by following a few simple directions refer particularly to the large flowered varieties. The best time for cutting is the evening or early morning. The stalk should be cut below a joint and defoliated. This latter operation is most important, as the retaining of the foliage is the chief cause of flagging. If foliage is required it should be cut separate. A good plan for the prolonged preservation of foliage and blooms is to immerse the ends of the stems in boiling water for a few minutes after which they may be placed into a deep receptacle of cold water.

As the Dahlia is a half-hardy perennial, the tuberous roots may be lifted and stored for the winter, after the foliage has been cut down by frost. If the frost has not been sufficiently severe to check the growth by the middle of November, the foliage should be cut down to within a few inches of the ground and the tubers then lifted. The tubers should be stored in any frost proof place, where the atmosphere is not too dry, and also not too warm. Some prefer to pack them in hay or straw. These tubers should be planted out again, about three weeks earlier than the normal time for young plants.

We repeat that the above directions are necessarily brief, but we shall be pleased to advise clients on any matter not touched upon in this Catalogue.
